Our approach to correcting problems in this assignment was to go through each piece of feedback given in our received heuristic evaluations. For each suggestion we decided if it could be implemented or if the suggested changes fit our design vision.

Changelog:

- One thing that we noticed in our feedback was that some of our buttons weren't clear that they were actually buttons, in particular the "Search For Course" button was mentioned. In order to remedy this, we added a drop shadow and narrowed the width to separate it a bit more from the rest of the interface and clear up its purpose.

- We also wanted to clarify the "Add Course" buttons. It was mentioned in our feedback that their function wasn't clear as they appeared to be a part of the section headers. We made them into actual button classes and gave them their own space next to the section headers.

- Added a section header to the left pane where the selected courses are. This should clear up the purpose of this section.

- On the course modal, we made it so only the ‘X’ icons were clickable to undo the different parts of the search.

- In order to better prevent the user from making errors, we added a confirmation dialogue for removing a course. We felt it wasn’t necessary to have confirmation before adding a course because if that happens, the user can just remove their accidentally added course.
